Hancock shares grief of nation in loss of Challenger crew

By BRENDA HEATHCOCK

Hancock County area residents joined mourners nationwide Friday as they conducted memorial services for the crew of the space shuttle Challenger.

Overflowing into the isles and out into the hall of the auditorium at National Space Technology Laboratories Visitor's Center, more than 300 people attended the services.

"The greatest tribute we can pay to the crew is to carry on with the same dedication, the same devotion and the same courage that was shown by these noble Americans," NSTL Director Jerry Hlass said during the services.

"NASA is a close-knit family which has shared its many triumphs with a jubilant, now a shocked nation and grieving NASA organization pull together to honor our fallen comrades," he continued.

"We in NASA feel this loss personally and professionally, but we are all heartened to find others taking the loss just as hard. Our appreciation goes out to the resident agencies and their employees who called to express their concern, their support and their assistance. We are all touched by the positive support from our communities—the schools, the churches, the children, the media and the man on the street," Hlass added.

Hlass added that America is a pioneering nation and that while NASA will move in the nation's spirit to search and explore, they are fully aware of the risks of exploration and the rewards of knowledge.

NASA's legacy for the seven crew members of the shuttle Challenger will be to continue their goals, he said.

"We will continue to search as they did. We will continue to reach out as they did. We will continue to explore because we must. We will go forward to keep their spirits and man's dreams alive," Hlass concluded.

A flag ceremony at the services was conducted by Naval Oceanography Command Facility. Members of the color guard were Jacqueline Coludrovich of Long Beach; Michael Karsh of Waveland; Steve Traugott of Slidell; and Dan Westra of Nicholson.

Jerry Brown, chief education programs officer at NSTL read a message from Congressman Trent Lott at the services.

"Mississippi is one today with the nation in mourning the loss of our seven brave Challenger Pioneers. We are part of the family that has made the space shuttle program possible," Lott wrote.

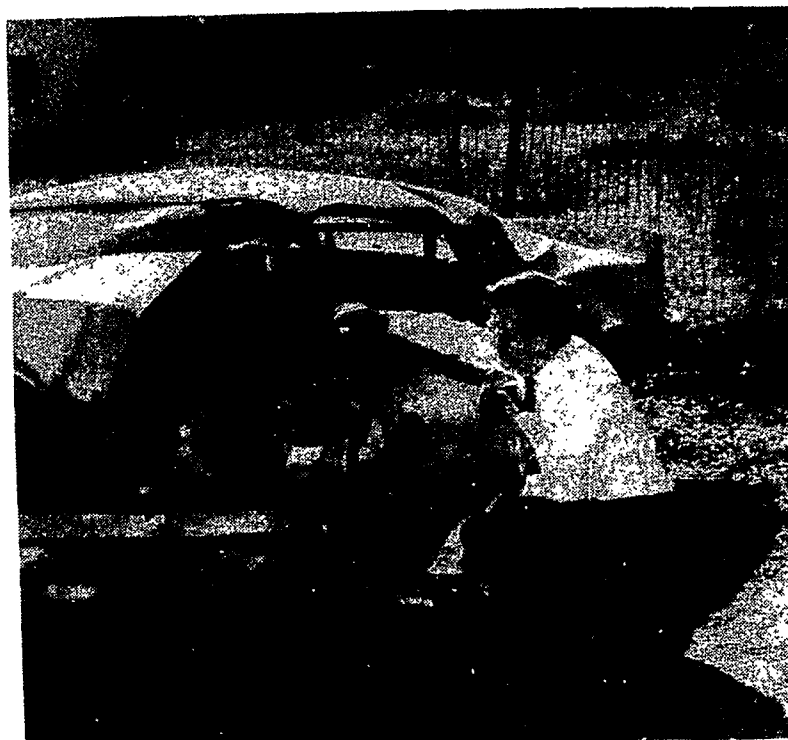

"And, it is because of our personal involvement that we are overwhelmed with the impact of this tragedy."

"I visited President Reagan Wednesday, immediately after he telephoned the families of the crew members, he told me that it was a very trying experience for him because he so intensely understood their grief.

"But, he said he was moved and inspired by their appeals to him that we as a nation learn from their misfortunes and that the space program go forward. I am sure it will—for those we remember today," Lott concluded.

The Rev. Dr. Raymond Leake of the First Baptist Church in Picayune gave the benediction.

McDonald to retain job as senior citizen director

BY DENA BISNETTE

The Hancock County Office on Aging will keep its director, although there will be some reorganization of the office in order to comply with new state guidelines.

Director Eve McDonald was notified by letter last month that her office had been eliminated by South Mississippi Planning and Development District, which administers the senior citizens programs in 15 counties including Hancock, because of state and federal funding cuts.

Les Newcomb, the executive director of the planning and development district, termed the elimination of McDonald's job "a mistake." In an informal meeting Friday with McDonald, members of the Hancock County Board of Supervisors, representatives of the Hancock County United Way and Bay St. Louis Ward One Councilperson Lisa Coward, Newcomb stated that the decision to eliminate McDonald's job had been made without his knowledge and that he had first learned of it from the press.

"With the exception of some big cuts coming down in March, I think we can hold on to what we have with some redefining of the structures of the organization along the lines of the regulations handed down to us," he said.

He said he was referring to state regulations redirecting some of the focus of the program from the use of senior citizens centers to in-home care.

He praised McDonald's 14 years of service to the aging and her work in establishing the program for the elderly in Hancock County.

"Eve has been with us a long time and I think she has done a good job. When we started out this was one of three projects in the United States. We were the only aging program in Mississippi."

He added that programs for senior citizens have been established throughout the state since 1970, and because of the need to fund those, some of the funding for Hancock County's program has been taken away.

The funding cut that initially took away McDonald's job was not the only one expected, Newcomb explained. Another is expected in March.

Newcomb and McDonald both said that the only way that previous funding cuts have been made up has been through the support of the community, but Board of Supervisors President A.A. Kellar said he feels county would be unable to provide more funding than it already supplies.

"It's one of the best programs I have ever had any dealings with and one that has meant a lot to this county."

Bay Senior High School honors space shuttle crew

Wearing black ribbons or armbands was one method used by Bay Senior High faculty and students to acknowledge the tragic loss of the space shuttle Challenger's crew Friday.

Beginning a day filled with memorial observances, a flag-raising ceremony followed by the flag being lowered to half-mast was observed early Friday morning by the student body.

Cheryl Jones, president of the senior class, and Kelly Ramsey, president of the National Honor Society, raised the flag while Carol Ladner, president of the Student Council, led the Pledge of Allegiance. Student Tonya Hammonds played taps as a part of the ceremony.

A moment of silence was observed at the approximate time of the Tuesday explosion of the space shuttle.

Roxanna Liebig, who was an applicant for the Teacher in Space Program, gave a short speech urging that this tragedy not deter future space travel.

"If we do not correct the mistakes of the past and continue to move forward with better technology for more reliable and safer space travel then six astronauts and one teacher will have died in vain. That would be a very sad day, indeed, for America," Mrs. Liebig added.

Names of the seven crew members were read by Patrick Whavers, president of the French Club and Jones recited a poem.

A light was also left on from 7 p.m. Friday until 7 a.m. Saturday in Mrs. Liebig's classroom as an additional part of the memorial services.

Principal Frank Ladner expressed sincere appreciation to the student body for their participation in the memorial ceremony.

Chamber names executive director

Olivia E. Milner of Bay St. Louis has been named executive director of the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce effective Feb. 10.

Dick Thomas, chamber president, said, "The board is very pleased to have Ms. Milner join the staff of the chamber, and we feel she will be an asset to our organization."

Milner, a native of Gulfport, received a bachelor of arts degree in public administration from the University of Mississippi, and attended Jefferson Davis Junior College, majoring in business.

Chamber, supervisors declare support for USM-Gulf Park

BY DENA BISNETTE

The Hancock County Chamber of Commerce Board of Directors and the Board of Supervisors have passed resolutions endorsing the continued operation of the University of Southern Mississippi-Gulf Park campus.

The resolution, which passed unanimously, stated that the Gulf

Park campus should remain open because it is "an integral part of the educational facilities of the Mississippi Gulf Coast and specifically, Hancock County."

In addition, the resolution stated that "closing this cost-effective university branch would be a step backward for higher education and the effective use of our Mississippi tax dollars."

The Gulf Park campus is described in the resolution as serving students who, for reasons including job and family commitments, are unable to utilize a university main campus; and as coordinating it degree programs with nearby junior colleges.

The resolution further states, "...the Gulf Coast is a major population center in the state and our educational facilities should be located in area where population dictates."

"...The loss of public higher education opportunities beyond junior college would discourage the acquisition of new business and industry, having a potential impact on Keesler, Ingalls and National Space Technology Laboratories."

The chamber board feels that the estimated savings does not justify closing the state's largest university branch in one of Mississippi's most densely populated areas, said Charles Benvenuti, chairman of the chamber's education committee.

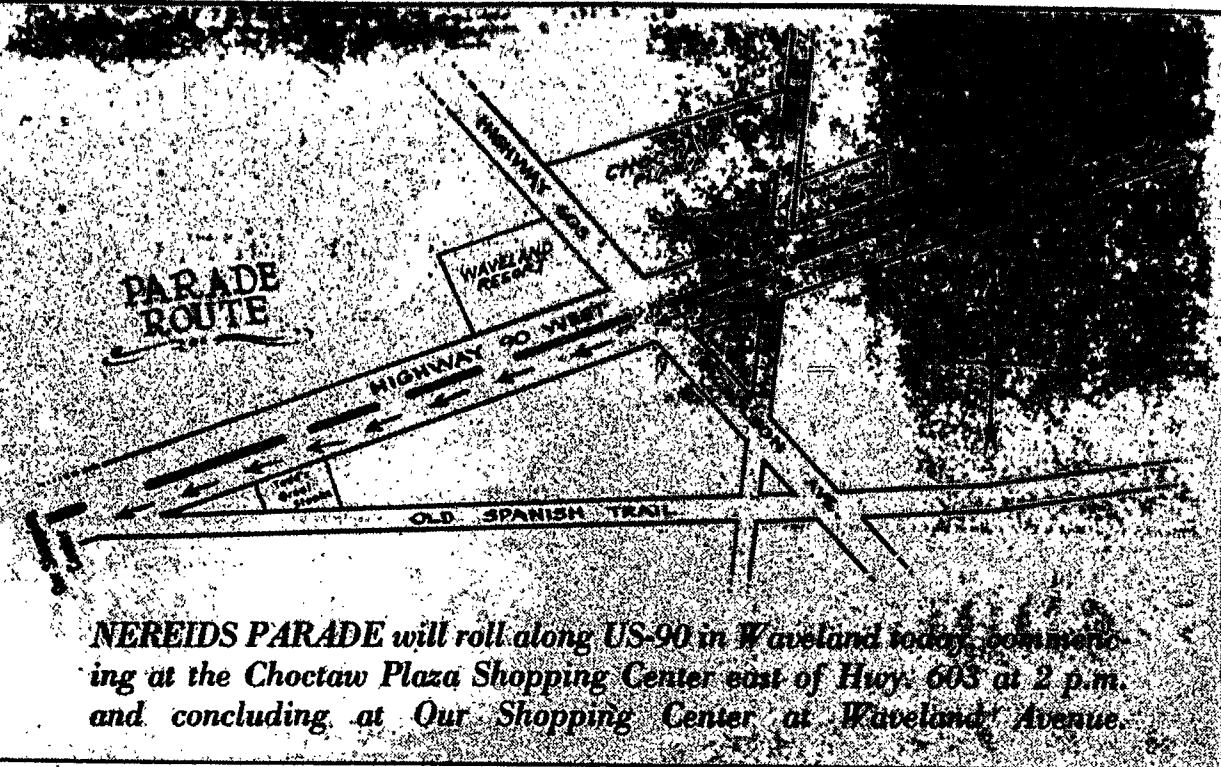

In addition, the Hancock County Board of Supervisors passed a resolution Thursday supporting the continued operation of the Gulf Park campus.

In the resolution, requested by Students for a Higher Education on the Gulf Coast, a task force dedicated to keeping Gulf Park open, the board asks that the Gulf

Supervisors may reject funding requests

BY DENA BISNETTE

The Hancock County Board of Supervisors does not anticipate being able to help all of the county's social programs cope with funding cuts.

On Thursday, the supervisors discussed two local programs that have been threatened by funding cuts on the state and federal level.

Both programs are administered by South Mississippi Human Resources Agency through South Mississippi Planning and Development District.

One of the programs, the Hancock County Office on Aging, has already suffered a funding reduction that has temporarily cost Program Director Eve McDonald her job.

According to Board President A.A. Kellar, removing a director endangers the existence of the program.

The board heard comments from about 12 people, including McDonald, concerning the need for continuation of the program.

All who commented praised McDonald's work in her 14 years as director and asked that she be reinstated.

Story Hour titles listed

Beach clean-up sample reveals glass, metal

BY DENA BISNETTE

Members of the Hancock County Board of Supervisors already know what type of debris volunteers who participate in "Clean our Beach Day" on Feb. 22 can expect to find.

The board received a preview of the clean-up results from Beachfront Technical Advisory Council members Ellis Cuevas and John Scaffide Jr.

Cuevas, Scaffide, Darlene Underwood, Dorothy Sutton and Buddy Klein had made a sample survey of the type of objects that can be found just under the water line on several areas of the beachfront.

The survey was done on Jan. 25, a low tide day at Washington Street, Nicholson Avenue, Clermont Harbor and Coleman Avenue.

Objects collected included numerous bottles, pieces of broken glass, pieces of metal, pieces of wire, sharp rocks and shells and pieces of timber with nails in them.

Scaffide said the clean-up is designed to help alleviate some of the problems with injuries suffered by beach users who step on sharp objects.

Cuevas said plans for the clean-up have grown from a committee that started with four people to include 19 subcommittees.

Based on the survey of types and amounts of debris to be found, Cuevas said at least 24 teams of five to 15 people each will be needed to make the project effective.

The current agenda includes registration from 9 a.m. until 10 a.m., collection of debris from 10 a.m. until noon and a brief closing ceremony at noon.

The county has agreed to furnish trucks and possibly other equipment needed to haul away the debris volunteers collect.

In addition, the organizers plan to offer prizes and other incentives to encourage participation in the event.

Quotables by CUEVAS

The many Memorial Services conducted locally and nationally for the members of the Challenger crew have been very moving.

When President Kennedy was killed, I was traveling to the Mississippi Test Facility to set up a newstand for The Sea Coast Echo when the news was flashed over my car radio. At this time only site preparations were underway for the facility now known as the National Space Technology Laboratories.

I would have to say that the tragedy on Tuesday appeared to have more of a personal impact on Hancock Countians than the president's death. This is because of the role played in space exploration by so many of our residents.

Most of the crew on Challenger's last flight had personally visited NSTL and were personally known by many people here.

I do not recall speaking with any of the astronauts on the tragic flight, but I have personally talked with others on their visits to NSTL.

I hope the media will respect the privacy of the families of the pioneers who lost their lives on the Challenger. They have their lives to live and should be allowed to do so with our strong, quiet support, but without the intrusiveness that normally follows such a tragic happening.

Many pioneers have lost their lives while exploring the new horizons of this great nation, but those great patriots aboard Challenger will probably be the most remembered.

To the families of those lost, we extend our deepest sympathy.

Because of the presence of a school teacher as a crew member on board Challenger, the children of America had a keen interest in the ill-fated flight.

Congratulations are in order for Waveland's Mayor John Longo upon his being selected as the Parade Marshal for Nereids' 20th parade.

We feel it is a very high honor given to Mayor Longo by the Women's organization which rekindled Mardi Gras celebrations in Hancock County.

The Krewe of Nereids parade is scheduled for 2 p.m. this afternoon on US-90 in Waveland and a portion of Bay St. Louis.

We hope there will be a large turnout of spectators to greet the Krewe of Nereids and Mayor Longo.

A word of caution to motorists on US-90, there is now a signal light at the intersection with McLaurin in Waveland.

This is one block from Nicholson Avenue and where there have been a lot of traffic accidents.

I almost struck a vehicle several weeks ago which pulled out of McLaurin during a misty rain and moved into the left lane of traffic in front of me.

I had to burn rubber to keep from ramming into the vehicle.

It has been rather hard for us at The Sea Coast Echo to think in recent days because of the pounding by the pile driver on the new jail site.

We have been told there will only be one more day of the noise and we sure will be glad.

One thing for sure, we were not the only ones hearing the noise.

Progress takes a little noise some times.

Challenger and Crew

Today Challenger took off with such grace. Her aim was to go out into space.

Tuesday, Jan. 28, nineteen eighty-six, as millions before their TV sat fixed. The crew of seven in confidence and smiles, were soon away for many miles.

Confident they would meet their goal, not knowing that story that would soon unfold.

As this brave little crew of seven ascended for seconds toward the heaven; As parents, mates, children, friends, watched from the ground, pride turned to fear. They made not a sound.

As in the sky was a burst of fire and flame, they thought of each beloved one by name.

Could all of this be so sadly true? Dear Lord, what's the fate of that little crew?

Who so bravely, just seconds ago, left the Earth, could so little time be the end of their birth?

In moments a burst of flame ended their lives, as fragments began falling down from the skies.

The flash in the sky was a sad revelation of reality that shocked us all as a nation.

Just moments ago had they left the earth's sod, so soon after to meet with their God.

Our Heavenly Father, please give us the grace, to continue to search for Thy will into space.

Their courage and faith they would say, "America press on, let not our efforts be faded and gone".

Take comfort from us—our family and friends, press on America, this can't be where it ends.

The future belongs not to faint-hearted—but brave; this wonderful space program America must save.

Then the lives that we gave will not be in vain. Go on, dear America, in Jesus' wonderful name.

To Him be all the honor and glory. Thus add to our lives as you tell our brave story.

Seven angels more join Grisholm, Chaffe and White, as they met their Lord on another fateful night.

Lord, by their sacrifices and departure from life, show us the way to avoid more horror and strife.

Dear Sir,

"I Never Promised you a Rose Garden"

That catchy lyric to a very popular song many years ago is also the theme of this article and still seems fitting.

Buccola & McIntyre Real Estate recently opened new offices, and to beautify the area planted more than 60 rose bushes on the premises.

However, Thursday evening a resident of our county removed these rose bushes.

The sensor from our office took pictures of the rump of the perpetrator and we know who it is.

He may call in Alexander Mundy—we all know who he is—"To Catch a Thief" at his own game.

Wastewater district board rejects redesign

BY DENA BISNETTE
The Waveland Regional Wastewater Management District has decided to reject a proposal calling for redesign of improvements to the Waveland sewage treatment plant.

The proposal, which called for the construction of an oxidation ditch instead of the treatment system presently planned for the plant, was provided through an engineering study recently obtained by the district.

The improvements to the plant, which call for activated sludge treatment followed by a system of rotating biological contactors, will be part of the third segment of a four segment project that will eventually link the Bay St. Louis and Waveland sewerage systems.

Activated sludge is described by District Administrator Ethel Schott as a speeded-up version of natural processes that use bacteria to break down sewage.

The rotating biological contactors are devices that would provide a higher degree of treatment when used in addition to the activated sludge ty and its people," he added.

"Money problems are about to hit everybody and when it comes we will have to tighten our belts and do the best job we have with what we've got," Newcomb said.

Newcomb said he plans to look into the matter personally and provide McDonald with budget information by Monday.

He said until Friday's meeting he had been unaware of McDonald's complaints that she had been unable to obtain a budget for her program.

McDonald explained that she had been dealing mostly with the agency through Jane Kennedy, director of the district's aging division, rather than directly with Newcomb.

Coast delegation to the Mississippi Legislature make all possible efforts to keep the facility from closing.

Dena Bissette, a student who introduced the resolution, told the board that approximately 39 percent of all Gulf Park students would be unable to attend college if the branch facility were closed.

She said the cost of obtaining an education at Gulf Park is 32 percent less than at the main USM campus at Hattiesburg, which is more than 80 miles from the Coast.

In addition, the average Gulf Park student would be unable to commute to Hattiesburg because of family and job obligations.

Gulf Park Dean Joseph Holloway said most Gulf Coast chambers have either passed resolutions and written letters to the Coast delegation.

In addition, several cities including Waveland have provided resolutions or proclamations supporting the school.

"These make our representatives and senators aware of the tremendous support we are getting from the public and show its concern about education on Coast," Holloway said.

"We feel both these resolutions and the letter-writing campaign we have are important because each serves to support the cause in different way."

He said that officials from the school met with the Gulf Coast delegation this week and received a good reception.

"Hancock County has Martin Smith, Gene Taylor and Walter Phillips and we feel they're all supportive. They gave us reason to be optimistic," the dean said.

He also stated that he has been "tremendously pleased" with the response that efforts to keep Gulf Park open have been getting from the general public.

She presently serves on the board of directors of the Coast Coca-Cola Bottling Company in Gulfport, and was employed as an interior designer for the Veterans Administration Hospital in Gulfport, and the Ethan Allen Gallery in Nashville, Tenn.

"I am very excited about becoming executive director of the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce," said Milner, "and will make every effort to personally contact the members of the chamber."

Wastewater

system, which is similar to the one the plant now uses.

The oxidation ditch was proposed to as a measure that would reduce operating costs of Segment III, but the district board rejected the measure because the amount of savings do not justify the cost and time involved in redesigning.

David Herndon, representing Reynolds, Smith and Hills, the design engineers for the project, said it would be possible to redesign the improvements by the May 1, 1988 grant deadline being imposed by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency, but said doing so would be difficult.

Because the project is partially funded through agency grants, the district would have still had to pay 50 percent of the cost of the unused design if the oxidation ditch proposal had been selected.

In addition, the savings the proposal offered would not be realized for a number of years and were mostly restricted to utility costs.

State Bureau of Pollution Control representatives at the meeting maintained that grant funding could be continued with either alternative and said either would comply with state and federal regulations for sewage treatment.

The board meets again Wednesday.

St. Ann-St. John Carnival Krewe cavorts to "Melodies of Yesteryear"

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Mauffray reigned as king and queen of the XII annual St. Ann-St. John Carnival Ball presented last Saturday night at the American Legion Hall, Waveland.

The royal pair ruled over a setting depicting the theme of the ball, "Melodies of Yesteryear."

Amid the setting of shimmering musical notes and golden records, guests were invited to reminisce in the days gone by as an imaginary coin was dropped into a giant jukebox.

The Captain's whistle officially began the ball.

As they were introduced, a rousing welcome was given to the returning king and queen, Their Majesties Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Brechtel Sr.

Dancing krewe members, playing make-believe musical instruments were led by Buddy Williams depicting "Alexander and His Ragtime Band."

Band members were Lois Saucier, Velma Schmidt, Georgiana Ruiz, Mabel Ladner, Pere Cabibi, Lou Hero, Sylvia Garcia, Dot Neubig, Helen Rohrbacker and Marian Traub.

Following introduction of Grand Marshals Gerald Boos, Louis Foret and Leonard Rupp, the club's officers were introduced - Virginia Thomas, president; Theresa James, vice-president and Juliette Ladner, treasurer.

Opening the pageantry, paying tribute to a melody of days gone by, made famous by one of the greatest entertainers and maestros of all times, Ted Lewis, was the captain of the ball, James Davis Sr. and his grandson Marc Davis, in a specialty number, "Me and My Shadow."

The captain and his shadow made their entrance attired in white tuxedos and full capes of gold-glittered cloth. Their ruffled shirts and bow ties were outlined in gold sequins. Completing their attire were matching gold top hats, gloves and shoes.

Queen Charlotte, arrayed in regal splendor, made a striking picture in a long white sheath gown fashioned along empire lines and fingertip-length sleeves edged with silver trim.

Her Majesty's gown featured a deep V neckline heavily outlined with silver sequins.

Her regal costume was enhanced by a delicately large Medici collar of silver imported lace, and topped with French plumes highlighted her royal raiment.

Her Majesty's mantle of white velvet, richly bordered in silver and gold sequins extended from the queen's waistline. Rhinestones formed the design over the entire mantle. Two crowns of solid rhinestones formed the motif in the center.

The traditional silver and rhinestone crown and regal scepter completed her array.

His Majesty the King was attired in white tail, ruffled white shirt and tie. In design, style and color his mantle and scepter were similar to Her Majesty's. His elaborate dome crown was lavishly adorned with rhinestones.

Maids to her majesty included Martha Van Peski, escorted by her duke, Lawrence Freeman. They portrayed a melody that was popular back in the 50's and was made famous by New Orleans jazz trumpeter Louis Prima, "That Old Black Magic."

Edith Thibeaux, escorted by Duke Carlos Arnold, depicted a melody that was a favorite of parents and grandparents, "Let Me Call You Sweetheart."

Marie Mauffray, escorted by Duke Conrad Mauffray, depicted a melody that is heard and played many times during this season of the year, "At the Mardi Gras."

Marilyn Higgins, escorted by Duke Irving Higgins, represented a melody made popular by the famous crooner Bing Crosby, "Pennies from Heaven."

Cheryl Fricke, escorted by Duke Vester Ladner, depicted a melody taking us back to the days of yesteryear, "Sweethearts on Parade."

Joni Horlock, escorted by Duke Robert McClure, represented one of the most popular of the oldies and goodies of days gone by, "Stardust Melody."

The royal entertainment was provided by "Friends from Waveland." The Second Line, twirled beautifully decorated umbrellas as they promenaded to the melody "When the Saints Come Marching In."

Included in the group were Claire and Talmadge Conway, Alice and Gilbert Brechtel Jr., Dot and Earl Brakemeyer, Jennie and Bob Ortis, Beverly Coogan and Joe Cuccia, Anna Mae Roppolo and Margaret Heitzman.

Also providing royal entertainment for their majesties and guests, making a spirited entrance, were "Friends from Louisiana" who 'did their thing' to "Bourbon Street parade"—attired in jeans, Bourbon Street t-shirts, blinking bow ties and sun visors.

This group included Kathy and James Davis Jr., Beverly and Danny Davis, Ralph Marchese and Susan Broussard, Shirley and Joe Stewart.

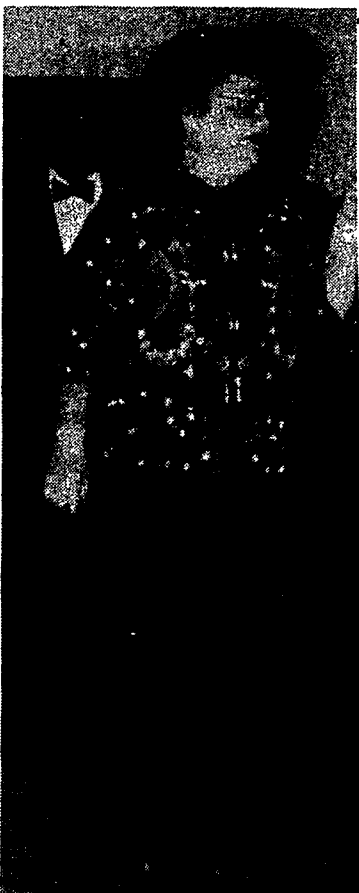

Immediately following the entertainment, their royal majesties commanded the captain to present their royal guests.

Commanded by the capatin, James Davis Jr. presented a beautiful bouquet of red roses to his mother, Rita Davis, a lady who unselfishly gave of her time and efforts in the preparation of the tableau and worked endless hours toward making the ball a success.

As the finale began to unfold the captain and krewe invited everyone to join in and sing a Melody of Yesteryear and This Year, one that will live in the hearts of everyone for all years to come, led by Father Lambert Stack, ST, pastor of St. Ann-St. John Parishes—"God Bless America."

Narrator for the gala affair was Monroe James.

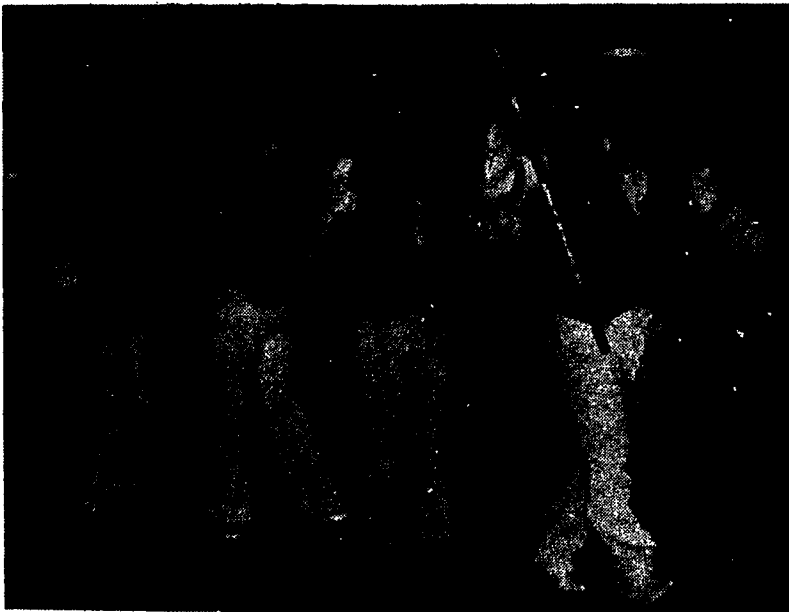

Music was provided by St. Charles Streetcar Band.

The Ladies Auxiliary of Bay-Waveland Yacht Club entertained at its 12th Mystic Carnival Ball on Saturday, Jan. 25.

Festivities were opened by Colonel Randolph Bourgeois, master of ceremonies.

The mystique of the tradition of choosing the queen and maids was colorfully unfolded as the tableau was enacted.

Rear Commodore Peter Morrill escorted Mrs. Weezie Kennedy, wife of Commodore Basil Kennedy; and Mrs. Malin Chamberlain, wife of vice Commodore Walter Chamberlain, into the ballroom where they alternated drawing seven names from the Queen's Box which was brought to the throne by Mrs. Tootsie Bookhardt, escorted by Commodore Kennedy.

Reigning as their majesties of the evening were Commodore Dick Shadoin as king, and Mrs. Rebecca A. Markel as queen.

The royal couple's crowns and scepters were of brilliant jewels.

The queen was resplendent in an emerald-green satin gown with a jeweled collar and mantle of satin trimmed with silver and gold sequins.

Maids to her Majesty were Mesdames Ada Whitfield, Lake Gaudin, Meg Hilliker, Marjorie Colucci, Ruth Walker and Kay Coleman. Dukes to his Majesty were Messrs. Kenneth Wilkinson, Charles Benvenuti, Stephen Ambrose, Irvin Cucullu, Randle Hatton and Orville Porter.

Mrs. Georgette Fromherz and Mr. Hugh Miller, 1965's queen and king respectively, were presented to toast the reigning monarchs.

Following the Grand March and court dance was general dancing and merrymaking with music provided by John Dupaquier and his Swinging Night Riders.

Vice Commodore Walter Chamberlain and his jazz banjo added to the frivolity of the evening.

Mr. Lawrence Martin served as general chairman of the ball. Mr. Russell Lanham and Mr. Emmett Woods served as general chairmen for the Floor Committee.

General Court chairmen were Mr. Eldon Gilly and Mr. John Eble assisted by Messrs. John Breeden, Matthew Hunter and William Leapley.

General Court Committee persons were Mesdames Marion Cook, Theresa Bourgeois, Barbara Fitch, Lake Gaudin, Gertrude Hatton, Alice Green and Bobbie Leapley.

Mrs. Naomi Martin, auxiliary president, was chairperson of the Reception Committee.

Lieutenants of the ball were Mrs. Pat Lanham and Mrs. Gloria Woods. Captain was Mrs. Verna Brennan.

TIMBERLINE

By David Watts
Hancock County Forester

Want some good news for 1986? Remember the lines of that classic Christmas song by singer-composer Mel Tormé: "Chestnuts roasting by an open fire..."

Many of us have yet to even see a real American Chestnut tree let alone roast some of its fruit by an open fire. A fungus introduced from China in 1904 virtually wiped out the species by the 1950s.

Well, the good news is that research up at Michigan State University reportedly has isolated a naturally occurring virus which could reverse the killer-fungus blight and pave the way for the recovery of American Chestnut.

Meantime, if you want to grow some Chestnuts now, and not have to wait for the old-fashioned kind to make a come-back, there's a nursery down in Florida that is marketing a blight resistant species.

Contact the Chestnut Hill Nursery Inc. of Rt. 3, Box 267, Alachua, Florida 32615 (Phone: (904) 462-2820). Ask about their Dunstan Hybrid Chestnut.

And, by the way, if any of you follow through on this lead and plant some, let me know will you?

Two reasons: 1.) Professional curiosity; and 2.) I'd like to try to talk you out of a few Chestnuts somewhere out there in the future when your trees start bearing.

Never tasted a roasted Chestnut, but every year around Christmas I get this awful craving. Know what I mean?

Hope this New Year has started out good for you. Let us hear from you this year if we can help you with any of your forest resource management needs. We're located on Dunbar Ave. behind Hancock General Hospital or call 467-4728.
